DT

In Design and Technology (DT) this spring term, Kestrel Class embarked on an exciting project to design and create a playground. They began by brainstorming ideas, considering the types of equipment and features that would make the playground fun, safe, and engaging for children. Using a range of materials, the students worked collaboratively to plan and construct scaled models, paying close attention to the design process, including measuring, cutting, and assembling parts. Throughout the project, they learned about the importance of safety in design, as well as the different materials and techniques used in building outdoor play equipment. By the end of the project, three people: Rithwik, Nathaniel and Dasindu came first in the race for designing the most functional playground. Many congratulations to the team.
